WARM MEETING.

Naval Architects Discuss Nicaraguan Canal.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE

Accompanied by Draft of a Memorial to Be Presented to Congress In Certain Contingency—Reasons Advanced.

NEW YORK, Nov 9.—The Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers had a warm discussion over the Nicaragua canal at yesterday's session of its convention. The question before the body was the proposition of presenting a memorial to congress from the society asking favorable action on the Nicaraguan canal project under the auspices of an American company, and the proposition to present the memorial was defeated by a vote of 27 to 15. Admiral Richard W. Meade, United States navy, was chairman of the committee which has the matter in charge and he made the following report:

In the judgment of this committee it would be proper to direct the president of this society to address such a memorial to the congress of the United States in the name of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers when the report of the Nicaragua commission, appointed by the president of the United States, is made public, provided that said report is favorable to the canal.

The report was accompanied by the draft of a memorial which follows:

To the Honorable, the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress Assembled:

Your petitioner, the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, incorporated under the laws of the state of New York, in convention assembled, do hereby present for the consideration of your honorable body the question of aiding by suitable legislation befitting the magnitude of the great project of any properly organized American corporation engaged, or to be engaged in the task of constructing a ship canal through the territory of the republic of Nicaragua.

It is useless for the society to remind your honorable body of the transcendent importance to this country of a successful prosecution of such a work.

Apart from its commercial benefit to the entire civilized world, it seems to us to promise to the people of the United States the means of cementing in even closer union than now exists the seaboard states of the Atlantic and Pacific, of rendering one and indivisible the ties that bind the extreme east to the extreme west, and of justifying one of the mottos of this glorious Union, "Esto Perpetua."

Furthermore it seems to promise to our people engaged in ocean commerce the prospect of competing as of old in American built ships or on more even terms than hitherto for the great trade of China, made possible by the recent struggle between that country and Japan; and it further promises to insure closer ties of friendship between ourselves and the Central and South American countries, giving to this country that predominance in the affairs of the American continent which by right we should have, and which has been jealously contested hitherto by certain European powers.

For these and other reasons which will doubtless occur to your honorable body, we ask most respectfully that the Nicaragua Canal company, under control of citizens of these United States may receive at your hands such consideration, sympathy and substantial aid and encouragement as you may deem wise and just.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.

Strength of the Battery the Foundation of the Charge.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., Nov 9.—Henry Sonnetag of Cleveland, deputy supreme chief ranger of the Order of Foresters, was arrested here for alleged assault and battery in connection with the initiation of two candidates, George Ayres, a grocer, and Millard Caldwell, a druggist. They stood the ordeal until they were led blindfolded and barefooted through a tank of water charged with electricity. Caldwell fought his way out of the lodgeroom, but Ayres was held to the work, and next morning he could not get out of bed. Sonnetag gave bonds for his appearance in court, and Ayres threatens an action for damages.

THE EARTHQUAKE.

It Opened Up a Gushing Stream Near Lawrenceburg.

LAWRENCEBURG, Ind., Nov 9.—A remarkable result of the earthquake last week is to be seen some distance from the mouth of Tanner's creek. Before the shock the creek was dry and showed a bottom of solid rock. The earthquake cracked the rock open, and there began flowing from the crack a strong stream of water that has filled the creek, though there has not been a drop of rain.

Shot a Tie Match.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 9.—J. G. Messner, winner of the grand American handicap of 1895, shot a match yesterday at 100 live birds with Alex. H. King, ex-international champion wing shot. The match was for $100 and ended in a tie, each man killing 88. The tie will be shot off next Friday, when the stakes will be doubled.

[illegible] OF DR. LUEGER.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Vienna correspondent of The Chronicle records a stormy sitting of the Reichstrath on the rejection by the emperor of the election of Dr. Lueger by the anti-Semites as burgomaster of Vienna. The premier's explanation gave rise to unprecedented scenes. Luegar and Prince Lichtenstein made violent and abusive speeches against the government. The public gallery was crowded with anti-Semites, who joined in the noisy demonstrations which were made, and were ejected for that reason. The house finally approved the rejection of Dr. Lueger's election by a majority of 54.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON

The Recipient of a Silver Loving Cup From Numerous Friends.

NEW YORK, Nov 9.—Nearly all of the prominent actors and theatrical managers in New York were in the company of 300 who assembled at the Garden theater yesterday afternoon to present to Joseph Jefferson a massive silver loving cup, the gift of more than 1,000 members of the dramatic profession.

Frank Mayo [illegible] made the presentation address [illegible]:

We are here [illegible] to tender in simple, honest words an [illegible] of the [illegible] and affection in which [illegible] held by your comrades of our profession [illegible] as a man, whom all, without [illegible] honor and respect; then as our [illegible] accepted representative actor, the head and front of the American stage, the peer of any actor in the land. We greet you [illegible] with all our loves, with all our hearts. But as no artist is greater than his art, so in honoring you we do honor to ourselves and to that art of which you are so proud, and of which we are so proud you are of it.

My dear brother in art, in their name I greet you once more; in their name I present this cup; in their name I say, Here's to your good health, to your family's good health, and may you all live long and prosper.

As Mr. Mayo concluded he walked toward the pedestal on which the plaster representation of the cup was placed, and drawing the silk draperies aside presented the veteran comedian with the gift of his brother and sister actors.

Frank Mordaunt called for three cheers for Mr Jefferson, which was responded to with a will, the audience arising en masse waving handkerchiefs and cheering. Mr. Jefferson did not attempt a set speech, but for half an hour dealt in bright reminiscences of the stage, and told stories of Booth and Forrest and his own early days, which pleased his audience immensely. In conclusion he said:

JOSEPH JEFFERSON.

There are here today three persons who have known each other for a long time, and who were formerly associated with Laura Keene's company during the run of "American Cousins." There was a company of 30 equipped actors, of whom there are but three alive—Mr. Stoddard, Mr. Charles Couldock and myself. Possibly it is the first time in 30 years that we all three have been assembled under the same roof or in the same theater together. I might say with the witch in Macbeth, "When shall we three meet again," but I believe as Tennyson says, "Life is but a play;" it matters not that it shall be long, but that it shall be well acted, and to be sure that we get a good end.

THANK GOD, THE DEED IS DONE.

This Was the Exclamation When a Tough Citizen Was Killed.

MARION, IND., Nov. 9.—Albert Fenseler, a driller at Van Buren, was shot and instantly killed by City Marshal Cartwright. Fenseler had been on a tear all day, knocking people right and left, smashing windows, bar fixtures and everything he came across. The marshal, being a small man, was afraid to arrest him alone, and telegraphed for assistance to Marion. Constables Haines and Watson left for the scene of the trouble, arriving there at 6 o'clock and arrested him. He broke away, and running to a hardware store, grabbed a large hammer, with which he attacked the marshal, who drew his revolver and shot him through the lung. There were over 300 people on the streets, who shouted their approval after they heard the crack of the gun. One old gentleman exclaimed: "Thank God, the deed is done."

Complexion of United States Senate.

WASHINGTON, Nov 9.—The Republicans made a gain of five United States senators, two from Utah, one each from Ohio, Kentucky and Maryland, while the Democrats loose three one each from Ohio, Kentucky and Maryland. The two from Utah take their seats at once, but the others not until March 4, 1897. Therefore the senate at present stands 44 Republicans, 39 Democrats, 6 Populists, 1 (vacant) Delaware.

THE SILVER MEN

Want a New Show-Down In Nebraska.

VOTE OF THE TWO FACTIONS

Friends of the White Metal Want the Question Submitted to a Primary Election—Opponents Have Little to Say on the Matter.

OMAHA, Nov 9.—Much interest has been created among Nebraska Democrats as a result of election returns showing the relative vote of the two wings. Mahoney, administration candidate for supreme court, received 14,500, and Phelps, silver man, 8,000. Both went on the ticket under the supreme court ruling as Democrats, and the silver men claim this was unfair to their interests and that it was not a proper test. The silver men now suggest that the silver question be submitted to a primary election in Nebraska, the regular Democratic committee and the bolting Democratic committee to agree upon primaries to be held at the same time and at the same place, each voter to be called upon to express himself on the money question, and the state convention to instruct its delegates accordingly.

If a majority of the Democrats of Nebraska are in favor of the 16 to 1 plank in the next national convention, the silver men are to be entitled to the delegation. If the majority of the Democrats of Nebraska are in favor of the present financial policy, then these Democrats are to have the right to represent the state in the national convention. This matter, they say, can only be determined by a primary election, and the silver Democrats say they are not afraid of such an expression from the voters. They assert that if the gold men refuse to submit the question to a primary election they will be stopped from claiming to represent a majority of the Democratic voters.

Both sides regret that it was impossible to conduct a campaign which would make this year a test. The silver men say that in Richardson county, where the matter was discussed and brought before the people, Phelps had a considerable majority over Mahoney. The same, they say, is true of Pawnee county, where the voters were apprised of the situation. The opponents of the white metal have little to say on the subject, asserting that the election results indicate clearly that the silver Democrats are outnumbered two to one in Nebraska, and they think they have nothing to fear in future contests.

IT WILL BE A TIE.

That Is What Is Claimed of the Kentucky Legislature.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 9.—The Evening Post says the general assembly only will be a tie when it meets and the election of a successor to Senator Blackburn is a matter of conjecture, the Democrats having 68 votes and 1 Democratic-Populist vote, making a total of 69.

The Republicans will have 68 and 1 Republican-alliance vote, making a total of 69. The Republicans claim the lieutenant governor, Worthington, will have the decisive vote, thus assuring them the senatorship. This is an error, however, as the lieutenant governor, as presiding officer of the senate, can not vote in joint ballot.

ONE MAN KILLED.

Wreck on Kentucky Central Division of Louisville and Nashville.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 9.—Freight No 2 on the Kentucky Central division of the Louisville and Nashville railway was wrecked at 3 a. m. by an open switch at Morningview, 17 miles from Cincinnati. DUN'S REVIEW

Of the Condition of Markets For Principal American Products.

NEW YORK, Nov 9.—R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade says: It has been a broken week, and just before and after elections in the most important states operations rarely have much significance. Business may be largely affected in time, but as yet there is scarcely any indication what the effect will be. The controling power at present is the effort to readjust the prices after the remarkable rise of last summer in import materials and products, with the struggle of great combinations to prevent decline.

An advance in the price of coke to $2 is expected. The price of Bessemer pig is lower, $14 75 at Pittsburg, and billets are lower because there is scarcely any demand for rails at the combination price; structural contracts are not few, and the demand for wire and wire nails has been curtailed by the nail trust by an advance of 176 per cent in four months. Large western and eastern orders for cars help the demand for bar, but finished products are quite generally sold below quotations, which are now lower than they were two months ago.

Many woolen mills are also closing to wait for orders, though the demand is fairly satisfactory for some dress goods and worsteds, and the Washington mills open Clay worsteds at 10 cents advance. But prices of these and most qualities of woolens are still uncertain, for manufacturers do not know yet what they have to meet.

Cotton mills do well, as the halt and hesitation in cotton does not stop buying of goods, and many believe goods safe at current prices, even if cotton is not, for raw cotton is held at 8 81 cents in spite of a highly respectable estimate of only 6,435,000 bales for the year.

Wheat falls back with great reluctance from its summer rise of 20 cents, but has declined 1½ cents for the week, western receipts being 8,019,910 bushels against 3,845,032 for the same week last year. The reports of winter wheat from some states are also better.

Corn comes forward largely, receipts being more than double last year's and nearly 1,000,000 bushels went abroad. The rapid marketing of supplies of wheat from Russia and Argentina, and the larger exports of corn from this country, both tend to lessen the future demand for American wheat.

Failures for the week have been 280 in the United States against 261 last year, and 49 in Canada against 42 last year.

The police have a clew, and arrests will follow.

EXPEDIENT DUES.

Brazil Has Authorized Their Restitution.

LEVY UNDER RECIPROCITY

The Charges Imposed Fell Altogether on Flour—American Firms Preferred Claims For a Refund of Amounts Paid.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—The department of state was yesterday informed in a dispatch from United States Minister Thompson that the president of Brazil had sanctioned a decree of congress authorizing the opening of a supplemental credit to the sum of 1,700,000 reis (equivalent to about $928,200) for the restitution of certain "expedient" duties, against the imposition of which the United States protested.

While the reciprocity treaty with Brazil was in force during the preceding administration, our government had reason to protest against the action of the Brazilian government in levying what is known as "expedient" charges upon imports from the United States. These dues fell as it happened altogether on flour, in which there was a lively trade at that time. Our protest was based upon the assertion that these dues were in the nature of tariff charges and therefore in violation of the reciprocity treaty, under which flour should be admitted free of duty.

The Brazilian government claimed that they were really warehouse dues, and as the government did not, as in this country, own the bonded warehouses, they were proper charges. Our view, however, finally prevailed and the Brazilian government abandoned the duties. The American firms who had exported the flour immediately preferred claims for refund of the dues they had already paid, and after a long negotiation the Brazilian government promised to pay them.

On last Wednesday afternoon two of our townsmen had a one round contest with tanned skin gloves over a banner which was printed for the Wapak parade. The fight only lasted about five minutes and the mayor charged one $7 40 and the other $8 40, which both parties paid.

Albert Dotson and wife spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives at this place.

J. I. C.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there, sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5.00 if it could not be had for less. For sale at 50 cents per bottle at Melville Bros., next to p. o., and C. W. Heister, 58 public square.

Bike and Bloomers.

The final triumph of the bicycle over the horse is foreshadowed, if it has not actually been accomplished, on a big farm near Wellington, Kan. One of the young men is an expert bicycle rider, and he usually rides his machine when driving his cattle to pasture or to the barns. He is able to search around over the level prairie and control the herd with great ease. Maybe the cowboy and his broncho are soon to be but a memory of a picturesque past.—New York Sun.

Good advice: Never leave the house on a journey without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by Melville Bros., next to p. o., and C. W. Heister, 58 public square.

SAD SPECIMENS.

Poverty Stricken People Who Were Given Relief at Ft. Wayne.

An impoverished family, the head of which bears the name of Ed Robison, was found by Humane Officer Schlaudroff about a mile north of Centlivre's brewery. They were on their way from Lima, O., to Huntington and their horse had strayed away, leaving them helpless. They were also penniless. The officer made arrangements to send them to Huntington.—Ft Wayne Sentinel.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding Nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents per bottle at Melville's drug store.

No Humbug.

Foley's Honey and Tar does not claim to perform miracles. It does not claim to cure all cases of consumption or asthma. But it does claim to give comfort and relief in advanced stages of these diseases and to usually cure early stages. It is certainly worth trying by those afflicted or threatened with these dread diseases. 50c. Vortkamp, n e cor Main and North streets.

Hall Caine.

Hall Caine, author of "The Manxman," in answer to a question about his life, said: "I was brought up as an architect in the country, and at the same time used to lecture upon literary topics. Shakespeare was one of my favorite subjects. My lectures attracted the attention of Dante Rossetti, who lived in London in a big, desolate barn of a house in Chelsea. There he used to paint and write a little and walk in the desolate garden attached to the house. He asked me to go there and live with him. I went to the mountains of Cumberland for my health and invited him to join me there. He said he would if I would come for him, and from that time we never parted until he died in my arms in 1880." Mr. Caine was born in 1853.

Miss Harvey's Exhibit.

Miss Margaret B. Harvey, author of "The National Flower, or Valley Forge Arbutus," the original "national flower poem," has a unique exhibit in the Pennsylvania department of the Woman's building at the Atlanta exposition. The exhibit consists of a pictorial sign, painted in oils and framed in gold. Attached is a decorated booklet giving the history of the national flower agitation.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.

THE MAYOR'S ADVICE.

Mayor Wing, of Montpelier, Vt., Heartily Endorses Dr. Greene's Nervura.

Mayor Wing Used Dr. Greene's Nervura in His Family with Marked and Decided Benefit. Makes All Strong and Well.

Hon. George W. Wing, Mayor of the Capital City of Vermont, is a man of high eminence. A distinguished lawyer, he has served his state in many high offices, having been Deputy Secretary of State, occupied a position in the State Treasury, was Postmaster of Montpelier, and was elected to the State Legislature in 1882. Owing to his great popularity, he had the distinguished honor to be elected Mayor of Montpelier, a position he now fills with illustrious success

When such a man, occupying so high a position in community, endorses the great curative powers and recommends the sick and suffering to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, no one will hesitate for a moment to use this grand medical discovery, this great restorer of health and strength.

Mayor Wing says: "I have used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy in my family, with marked and decided benefit.

"Especially has it been useful in insomnia, arising from indigestion and its attendant evils. I think well of Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and freely grant permission to use this letter in advertising it."

You who suffer from nervousness, nervous weakness, the exhaustion of nervous debility, the tired condition attendant upon poor blood and low vitality, the nerve-wearing pain of neuralgia or rheumatism, who pass sleepless or restless nights and wake mornings tired and unrefreshed, with dull-feeling head, bad taste in the mouth, and go to your occupation languid, nerveless, dispirited, without your old-time energy and ambition, do not lose a moment in securing this grand strengthener and invigorator, Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It is purely vegetable and harmless, and it will surely make you well.

It is not a patent medicine, but the prescription of the most successful living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene of 35 West 14th St., New York City. He has the largest practice in the world, and this grand medical discovery is the result of his vast experience. The great reputation of Dr. Greene is a guarantee that his medicine will cure, and the fact that he can be consulted by anyone, at any time, free of charge, personally or by letter, gives absolute assurance of the beneficial action of this wonderful medicine.

Catarrh in the Head

Is due to impure blood and cannot be cured with local applications. Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured hundred of cases of catarrh because it purifies the blood and in this way removes the cause of the disease. It also builds up the system and prevents attacks of pneumonia, diphtheria and typhoid fever.

Condensed Food.

One lesson to be learned from the Japanese soldiers in the late war is the important one of carrying food supplies in packages of very small compass. Never before in the movements of any army has the custom prevailed to any great extent of carrying a second, or food, belt around the soldier's body, along with his cartridge belt. It was shown that beef capsules, and also tea capsules, could thus be conveyed at little inconvenience on rapid marches. The beef capsule, or cartridge, when dropped into a tin of hot water, made a nourishing soup or broth. The tea capsule yielded a good cup of that beverage.

It has been found possible to compress a good sized loaf of bread into a cube 2 or 3 inches square. It becomes thus very hard, but when it is broken into a bowl of soup this compressed bread resumes its ordinary size. Roast beef has been compressed in the same way till it is as hard as an aged bologna sausage. In this condition the soldier grinds it up in a sausage mill, and it comes out in shreds and small bits, ready to be eaten.

The compressed food enterprise is only in its infancy. When properly developed, it will be of invaluable aid to campers and explorers as well as armies. Perhaps through its aid travelers will yet find both the north and south poles.

There are two reasonable things which everybody should do—take good care of one's health; and if lost, regain it quickly, and to this everybody will agree. And there are a great multitude of people who are agreed that for both purposes Simmons Liver Regulator is the best helper. "I am troubled with torpid liver and nothing gives relief so quick like Simmons Liver Regulator" —R. R. Strange, Lake City, Fla.

NO TIDINGS

Have Yet Been Received of the Whereabouts of Murderer Minor.

Sheriff Ranney, who went to Putman county Wednesday, to effect the capture of murderer Simon Minor, has sent no word to anyone at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, and it is not known whether he has caught him or not. It is suspected that he will bring him here, and say a word to no one one and land him in jail.—Kenton News.

HEALTH VERSUS DISEASE.

It seems to be the lot of humankind to suffer and to die. Hundreds of diseases have been recognized by the regular practitioner as incurable The afflicted one is told that his days are numbered—nothing can, be done—he's left by these incompetent ones to his own reflections and to die. To such Dr. Ottman comes as a deliverer. He comes to break the chains of death. He comes to liberate the slave. He comes to interpose himself between his patient and death He comes to cure the seemingly incurable. His knowledge is conceded to be the best, gained as it was through a tedious though thorough course in the best colleges of this and the old world. His so-called miraculous power of healing but the natural sequence, the ultimate outcome of a practice gained by years of experience. No sufferer is too bad, none that were pronounced incurable, none "so near to the grave" that they need despair. Dr. Ottman comes to cure. Will be in Lima, Ohio, Tuesday, Nov. 12, in the private parlor of the Lima House, from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. One day only. Consultation free and strictly confidential.

Attention, U. V. U.

Reading a Paper.

It's odd how differently men and women read a newspaper. A man looks over the headlines, lingering a bit here and there maybe, then turns to the telegraphic and cable news, getting over to the editorial page and winding up with a cursory glance over topics of general interest. Nine women out of ten start in with the marriages and deaths, struggle with a few headlines and finish with fashions.—Chicago Post

Child's Play — washing with Pearline. Everything that makes it hard work is taken away.

Everything that makes the wear and tear, too —there's no rub, rub, rubbing about it. It's absolutely safe. Remember that, if you've had your clothes eaten, frayed - or ravelled by cheap imitations. Pearline is as cheap as anything can be that is safe. It costs no more at the start than common soap—and it saves money from the minute you start with it.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 327 JAMES PYLE, New York

HOW TO PREVENT CROUP.

SOME READING THAT WILL PROVE INTERESTING TO YOUNG MOTHERS. HOW TO GUARD AGAINST THE DISEASE.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by Melville Bros., next to p. o. and C. W. The A. P. A. organization claims the credit of having carried the State for the Republican ticket. A representative of that organization is reported in the Cincinnati Enquirer of claiming that it cast 75,000 votes for Bushnell.

See how it works? As soon as the people of Allen county rebuked the corrupt Lima gang which was maligning honest Democrats and elected an entire Democratic county ticket, the drouth was broken, and the welcome rain commenced falling, refreshing the parched earth and helping the farmers on to more prosperity.

The Gazette editor wishes he had kept his smut mill quiet during the campaign, for the candidates on the Republican ticket all unite in saying that the course of that paper contributed largely to their defeat. This morning's edition contains a lament from the editor in which he asserts that during the campaign the columns of his sheet did not contain an abusive paragraph. Save the mark! And that editor believes in the orthodix idea of future punishment for those who disobey the ten commandments! It is reprehensible enough for a newspaper to accuse honest men of dishonesty; of stealing money that belonged to other people; of using public money for private enterprises; but when, after a newspaper has published that sort of stuff through its columns, its editor attempts to deny that he did so, when the record of his villianous and libelous slanders are out against him, the suggestion follows that the editor is daffy or thinks that his readers are Or perhaps he thinks that no one read the stuff that is put into his columns during campaign times.

The Delphos Herald says in its issue of November 8th:

The city council met in adjourned session Thursday evening for the purpose of accepting from Civil Engineer Gambie the water works plans and specifications, but that gentleman failed to put in his appearance or make arrangements to have them presented, consequently nothing could be done, and the matter remains the same as heretofore.

Can it be possible that Robert is doing work in Lima that even interferes with his Delphos private snap? Really the people of Lima will be quite overwhelmed to learn that Robert has been doing some work in this city in return for the $5 00 per pay that he receives for each working day in the month

All the comfort the Philadelphia Press is able to extract from the result of last Tuesday's election is that the money question has been settled. That conservative journal says:

The most gratifying feature of the late election is in the fact that the question of honest money has won a decisive and enduring victory. This is more valuable to the nation than the success of any mere political party. It matters not whether Democrats or Republicans control the next administration, the free silver freaks and the cheap money fanatics will be voiceless and powerless in the direction of the Republic. Honest money and a thoroughly sound financial policy for the maintenance of public and private credit, are among the things settled by the elections of Tuesday last.

It is settled that the Democratic party must be organized on broader and more liberal lines with greater cohesive power, if it would hope to be a great party of the future. The time is past when any party can live on traditions. The vital principles for which it was contending are practically settled There will never be a return to a monopoly protective tariff; our financial safety has been settled, and chiefly by a heroic Democratic President. Federal interference with national elections is a thing of the past, and the right and duty of the Government to maintain public order and protect person and property throughout its entire domain, is now for the first time in our history undisputed. The issues of the past are now of the past, and Democrats must have something more than mere Democracy to maintain a great party in either state or nation.

The official vote of Allen county will be found on the second page of this issue of the TIMES-DEMOCRAT.

* * *

The life insurance agents who represent the leading companies in this city, have all received circular letters from their companies that are of considerable importance.

One of the evils that life insurance agents have always had to contend with was the class of agents who, in order to secure business, made it a practice to rebate a portion of the agent's commission to the applicant. Thus, an agent would approach a man and offer him $10 if he would take out a policy. This practice demoralized the business and became a menace.

Now, the twenty-seven largest companies in the United States have signed an ironclad agreement that hereafter no rebate will be allowed to be paid by the company or any agent. If any agent is convicted of violating this agreement he will be discharged and cannot work for any other company for one year.

A referee has been chosen by the companies to whom is referred all complaints of this kind. The referee is ex Governor Russell, of Massachusetts, who has no interest in any company.

This new rule is entirely satisfactory to the agents. It will revolutionize the life insurance agency business everywhere and the agent who can talk the longest and loudest hereafter will be the successful one.

The great disappointment felt by the Ohio National Guardsmen in their failure to go to Chattanooga is still felt by some, but a plan is now on foot to give the guardsmen an even pleasanter experience next summer, when it is hoped to put the entire Ohio National Guard in camp at Cleveland during the centennial celebration there. The boys will all welcome the plan, and though it has not gone so far as yet to be a certainty or to approach to anything like a definite plan, still it is said to be more than likely the arrangement can be made.

BROKEN WRIST

The Result of Carelessness in Handling a Street Car.

Last evening about 5:30 o'clock Mrs. Margaret Rumple, of west Market street, who with several other ladies were at the crossing in front of the Holmes block to take a street car for their homes, met with a very painful accident. Mrs. Rumple had just caught hold of the hand-rail of car No 3 when the motorman started the car and she was thrown violently to the ground and her right wrist badly fractured The injured lady was removed to her home, Dr. Vail summoned and the fracture reduced.

The motorman laid the blame on the trolly boy whom he said rang the bell, but those who witnessed the accident say the motorman was entirely to blame.

SHAKESPEREAN

Reading by Mrs Jonathan Kearsley Brice.

The Shakesperean reading given by Mrs. K. Jonathan Brice in the Board of Education rooms yesterday afternoon was a delightful treat, and notwithstanding the very unfavorable weather there was a large attendance Mrs Brice's interpretation of the subject she had chosen was a very excellent piece of work and highly appreciated. Her programme was as follows:

MACBETH, A PASSION DRAMA.

Temptation	Act 1, Scenes 3, 5 and 7
Consummation	Act 2, Scenes 1 and 2
Concealment	Act 2, Scene 3
Retribution	Act 2, Scenes 1 3 and 4 Act 4, Scenes 1 and 3 Act 5, Scenes 1, 5 and 8

Mrs. Brice has in contemplation another reading in the near future.

AMONG THE RAILROADS.

DIRECT COAL LINE.

January 1, 1896, will witness the completion of the Lima Northern railroad to Ottawa. This line belongs to the Brice system and is now being built to form an important part of the net work of railways which the senator has been at work upon for several years. At Lima the Northern connects with the Ohio Southern, a road extending down into the center of the coal fields of Ohio. At Ottawa it connects with the Findlay, Fort Wayne and Western, thus giving Fort Wayne a direct line to the coal fields and another line to Toledo.—Ft. Wayne Sentinel.

HAD HIS SHOES OFF

So the Police Don't Believe His Story.

Mrs. Watson, who lives in the building in the southeast corner of the square, which the colored girls named Howard and Johnston occupy, appeared before the mayor last evening, and claimed that there was a fight in the part of the house occupied by the two girls, on last Friday night.

The girls were before the mayor yesterday and pleaded not guilty to the charge of disorderly conduct, and were released until a further investigation is made. A white man named Cromwell, who was in the girls' room when the latter were arrested, was also notified to appear. He claimed that the girls had called him in to send him for a doctor, but the police say he had his shoes off.

By a Stranger Who Had a Nice Fairy Tale.

James Taylor Petty, Newwspaper Promoter and Schemer, Leaves Lima and an Unpaid Board Bill.

James T. Petty, who came to this city a few weeks ago and announced his intention of starting a daily newspaper, was evidently not slow in becoming apprised of the fact that Lima is already too numerously supplied with newspapers, for he shook the dust of Lima from his feet so hastily that he neglected to settle the board bill which he contracted at the Faurot House during the time that he was endeavoring to presuade the good citizens to subscribe for his now bursted bubble Mrs. Woods, proprietress of the Faurot House, waited patiently for Petty to return and settle and recently. thinking she had given him ample time, she signed an affidavit before Mayor Smiley charging the chief factor of the proposed "independant" newspaper with obtaining food and lodging with intent to defraud, but the whereabouts of the gentleman made defendant in the case are evidently unknown inasmuch as no disposition of the case has been docketed

Of

A superb literary and pictorial production in 24 parts, comprising 384 splendid photo-engravings (every one a gem) from negatives all secured in 1894

BEAR IN MIND "Earthly Footsteps of the Man of Galilee" is a wholly unique production Never before has a work of like plan and scope been attempted It has involved three distinct tours of Palestine and the East—two by Bishop Vincent and one (in 1894) by Dr Lee, accompanied by Mr. Bain, both under special commission for this work Over 800 negatives were secured, and 384 Superb First-Hand Views carefully selected from these embellish the publication These views are presented in strictly chronological order, and, with the accompanying descriptions, constitute a complete pictorial serial story of the Savior, recounting also the journeyings of His Apostles to Asia Minor, Greece Rome and the Archipelagic Islands. Part I. also contains Dr Stephen J Andrews' celebrated Outline Harmony of the Gospel and Chronological Index, and every number is accompanied by a Beautiful New Map, in eight colors, on which the journeyings of our Lord and His Apostles are plainly traced All in all, the work is new, original, accurate, artistic, and striking in every respect. It is copyrighted, thoroughly exclusive, and cannot be obtained save in the manner below indicated.

By special arrangements with the publishers we are enabled to furnish these Art Folios at the small sum of 10c each to our customers The regular price is 25c, but with each purchase of $1.00 and 10c additional you can secure each Number of this work, which is the result of much labor and research on the part of Bishop Vincent, the Chancellor of Chautauqua.

Why They Laughed.

As the favorite comedian appeared before the audience in a local variety theater with the limp so characteristic of him there was a ripple of applause. The only way that he could properly introduce himself was by singing a song, and he at once bravely complied with the time honored custom.

"I wore a new pair of shoes the other day," he announced after the piano playing had stopped. "They didn't hurt me until I met two policemen. Then I got pinched."

"Something else I must tell you," he continued. "I was sleeping in a cellar the other night when I woke up and noticed a group of five mice playing poker. They were deep in the game, raising and calling and raking in the chips. They didn't notice a cat behind a barrel near by, but I did.

"Suddenly the puss made a leap. The game ended with the same old story—everything went into the kitty."—Philadelphia Call.

A request that tends to foster the belief in a personal devil has been made by some floriculturists to the dealers who sell their flowers. It is that, instead of selling his surplus stock to poor peddlers, who retail it out cheaply on the streets, the florist should destroy that stock, so as to keep up the price of flowers. Rich people pay often for a single rose the price of what amounts to a whole day's work for a poor person. The rose is worth exactly as much as the seller can get for it. The surplus violets, carnations, roses and other flowers are sold to the street venders. They make these up into pretty little bouquets and sell to the humble, the working people and the poor, who thus get possession of some exquisite blossoms they would otherwise never get a sight of. It rejoices their hearts for hours. The poor peddler likewise makes an honest living for himself and his family. But the hoggish flower grower would have all this pleasure and utility destroyed solely to gratify his greed and "keep up the price of flowers." In heaven's name, what does anybody want to keep up the price of flowers for? The more of them there are, and the cheaper they are, the more of them will be bought.

FALLING SCIENTIFICALLY.

Accidents to Circus Performers Often Avoided by Skill and Knowledge.

There is never a moment when a rider in the circus ring is entirely free from danger. Of course the various feats become easy enough of accomplishment after long practice, but the performers can never be sure at what moment their skill and experience will be set at naught through some failure of the horse to do what is expected of him. Suppose the horse shies while the rider is standing on his back preparing for a spring. The chances are ten to one that a fall will result, and yet there is no sure way of knowing when a horse is about to shy. The most trifling thing may cause him to do so. A sudden crash of music, the fall of a programme thrown carelessly into the ring, a ray of sunshine striking him unexpectedly in the eyes, the creaking of a pulley, any one of a hundred things; swerving a few inches to the right or left, a sudden dart forward, will be more than sufficient to upset the delicately poised equilibrium.

Therefore the act of falling is one of the most important, and it is also one of the most difficult of mastery among the circus rider's accomplishments. It is always easy to recognize a veteran circus rider in the way he falls. As soon as he sees that the situation is hopeless, that he must go down, his hands shoot for his knees like a flash, and he hugs himself up automatically into a round ball, with nothing exposed that can break, unless possibly it be a rib or two in some very exceptional case. Usually striking in this way, with the muscles all tense, and the body folded up tight and hard, the rider escapes with a few bruises and a general shaking up.

"I remember the worst fall I ever had as distinctly as if it were last week, although really it was several years ago," remarked a circus rider to me recently. "It seems queer, but it happened when I was sitting astride my horse, walking around the ring quietly after doing an act. All of a sudden something made the horse shy, and before I knew it I was gone—lifted up in the air and turning over, half from habit, I suppose, in a back somersault. I heard the ring master yell at me, and realized that unless I could get round in the turn so as to clear my head I would break my neck in striking. Between that and my reaching the ground was only the small part of a second, but it seemed as if I had oceans of time to argue out the whole situation. I wondered if the horse wouldn't step on me, decided how I had better roll to get away, planned just how I would strike the ground with my shoulders if I managed to save my head, and then I dug my chin down into my breast, body and muscles on that turn.

"Well, it was a close shave. They carried me out senseless, and the doctor said my neck was broken, but it wasn't. It was pretty badly wrenched, though, and I carried my chin pressed against my body for weeks afterward. You can be sure if I hadn't got up some fine speed on that turn there would have been another dead circus rider."

"Do you mean that a circus rider can make himself turn faster or slower after he is in the air?" I asked.

"Certainly I do; that is the most important part of somersault work. You see, no matter how good a man is he can never leave his horse for a turn with exactly the right amount of spring. Sometimes he will throw himself a little too hard and other times not hard enough; it depends partly on the way the horse is going. Well, when he finds himself in the air, say half way around on the turn, he feels—that is, all good circus riders do—by a kind of instinct whether he is turning too fast or not fast enough so as to land right on the horse. Besides that he can see most of the way round just where the horse is and by practice tell whether anything is wrong. Now, suppose he wants to slacken his speed a little, he simply lifts his head straight up, or even a little back, and that acts like putting on a brake. Then, if he sees he is too slow, all he has to do is to bend his head down on his chest in the way I was telling you of, like a bicycle going down hill."—Philadelphia Enquirer.

The Candle.

Professor Crooks thinks that if the electric light were universal today the candle, if suddenly introduced, would be thought a wonderful invention, as it enables a person to obtain light in its simplest and most portable form, and without the use of cumbrous machinery or the necessity of attaching the lamp to any fixed point by means of wire before it could be lighted.—New York Tribune.

VERY LIFELIKE MUMMIES.

Ghastly Exhibit of the Dead In an Old Bordeaux Crypt.

It is the general impression that no more horrible and ghastly picture of death preserved for the eyes of succeeding generations is to be viewed than in the catacombs of Rome. There, far down in the earth among tortuous passages which ascend and descend, are niches filled with grisly human skulls and heaps of bones arranged in ghostly, grotesque patterns that seem even more terrible half lit as they are by the faint gleams of the candle in an attendant's hand.

Nevertheless in a corner of Europe far less visited—the busy and bustling city of Bordeaux, in southern France on the banks of the river Garonne—there is an exhibition of the dead that for horror personified far overtops the skulls and bones of the catacombs of Rome. There are not far from 100 mummified corpses, clothed in flesh, almost as natural as life, only with their faces sunken, their eyeballs depressed and all turned to a grewsome brown, even their clothes having been preserved.

Few tourists pass through Bordeaux, but the Church of St. Michael, to which the crypt belongs, is quite open to visitors, and ingress is easy. The crypt lies under the great gothic tower of the church, that is one of the finest pieces of architecture in France.

The guardian of the mummified corpses below is a bent, elderly cobbler, who while waiting for the few visitors sits in a little shop just outside the tower and mends shoes all day long. He starts down the steps in total darkness, pausing half way to light a tallow candle stuck in a piece of tin mounted on the end of a stick.

Arriving at the crypt, the visitor sees by the dim candlelight that he is in the center of a ring of horrible figures that grimace and peer at him, that seem in their shriveled and tattered graveclothes like Holbein's famous "Dance of Death" realized to perfection. It is as if the dead were brought to life again in the flesh, as it were, with their cerements half falling from them, every feature and every limb distorted, horrible in the ghastly burlesque upon blooming life that they seem to be enacting.

The explanation of this strange preservation is to be found in the fact, which scientists have since attested, that the soil of the old cemetery possessed through certain chemical properties a peculiar power of preservation.

The cobbler tells you queer stories of the dead, one particularly horrible of a youth who was buried alive. The body in its mummified state is an example proof of the tale. Even though the face is shrunken and its character totally lost there can yet be discerned the searing effect of agony and the struggle in the tomb. Misery is plainly evident in the way the body is drawn up, in the swollen muscles of the neck that tell of the battle with asphyxia under a tightly closed coffin lid. The legs are drawn up, and the fingers have their joints almost torn apart. As if imperishable marble all this has been preserved unchanged for 100 years.

One strange group is pointed out by the old man—a father, mother and four children of various sizes who died from eating poisonous mushrooms. How this fact has come down to the present day is uncertain, but the custodian insists that that was the cause of their death, and that in a single night this entire family was swept off in this way.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

OUR COCOANUT TRADE.

How the Nut Was Introduced Into Florida—Its Value and Uses.

Quite a number of tropical nuts have recently been introduced into cultivation in this country. Already on the east coast of Florida are growing 250,000 cocoanut trees, 12,000 being on one plantation. It is believed that the first trees of this kind in the state sprouted from nuts brought from Central America and the West Indies by the gulf stream. At Key West and about some of the old forts cocoanuts were planted at an early day, as certain ancient trees now standing bear witness. In 1871 a bark freighted with cocoanuts was caught in a storm off the coast of Florida and beached near Lake Worth. Several thousand of the nuts were saved and planted, the satisfactory growth of the seedlings giving an impetus to cultivation.

The first importation of cocoanuts of named varieties was made in 1889, when the secretary of agriculture obtained through the state department two shipments of selected nuts from the Philippines. These, with two other shipments in 1890 from the same islands, comprehended fourteen varieties. To get so many varieties was no easy task, inasmuch as not more than two or three kinds grow in any one district or island of the archipelago, and they were collected by a skilled botanist, who made a tour for the purpose. The nuts thus received were forwarded to growers in Florida. Certain specimens from the islands of Albay and Misamis were of the smallest known variety, which yields little oil and is of inferior flavor. The shells are carved by the natives into beautiful drinking cups. The meat of a variety called "tayomamis" is prepared as a delicious sweetmeat with yams and sirup. Another variety, on account of its extreme hardness, is known as "bahan," which means millstone.

The word cocoanut is derived from the Portuguese "coco," meaning monkey, because the base resembles a monkey's face. The tree was known to the people of Ceylon as early as 160 B. C., the milk being used by them for making cement. The cocoanut is one of the most useful of plants; root, trunk, leaf, sap and nut are made to yield tribute to man. The fiber of the husk furnishes excellent yarn, and is preferred to horsehair for stuffing beds, cushions, chairs and saddles. It is stronger and more elastic than hemp. The Polynesians twist small cords of this fiber, which serves in the construction of houses and canoes where Europeans would employ nails. The green nuts are grated for medicinal use. Grated cocoanut forms an ingredient of the East Indian condiment curry. In the Maldive islands labor is usually paid for in cocoanuts.

The chief manufactured product derived from the cocoanut is oil, valued at 7 cents a pound by the hogshead. Most of the cocoanut oil consumed in the United States is manufactured in this country from imported nuts. It is valuable in the making of candles and soaps. It also serves as a substitute for butter. It is used by natives of the Pacific islands for burning in lamps. The kernels of the nuts, broken and dried, are called "copra." One thousand cocoanuts yield 500 pounds of copra, from which are obtained 25 gallons of oil. A good tree yields 100 cocoanuts annually, worth 4 cents apiece. The worst foe of the planter is the black rat, which builds its nest in fruiting trees and destroys the nuts. To protect the trees against this enemy the trunks are incased in broad sheets of galvanized iron.—Washington Letter in Boston Transcript.

Keats' Rank as a Poet of Poets.

At his best Keats is probably the greatest poet, in perfection of expression, magic of style and ineffable distinction of thought, since Shakespeare. His verse has the classic quality, and he who had no Greek, in his "Odes to the Nightingale" and to "Autumn," is as Greek as Sophocles. We cannot trace the mode of his inspiration; we cannot derive it from Milton, Spenser or the Italians. Like the minstrel of Odysseus, he is "self taught," and as the muses, meeting Thamyris, "reft him of sight, but gave him song divine," so they gave to Keats brief life, but all their charm. He is not a poet of ideas, of "movements," of revolt, like Byron and Shelley, but a poet of life and of its mystery and beauty. In him, at his best, is nothing temporary or local, any more than in Sappho. Even more than Spenser, he is, or should be, the poet of poets. Had he lived, even he would not have excelled himself, nor can we even guess what he might have done had his life been prolonged to the years of Tennyson. He was not only poetical himself, but the cause of poetry in others, and it may be deemed that Shelley never exceeded the merits of his "Adonis." Leaving such verse, as he did, and mourned in such a requiem, Keats may be regarded as one of those who die young because they are dear to the gods.—London News.

THE GUNMAKER OF ILION.

Jefferson M. Clough, the Man Who Developed the Two Greatest American Rifles—The Remington and the Winchester.

He Refused a Tempting Offer From the Chinese Government—His Health Would Not Permit His Acceptance.

From the Springfield, Mass. Union.

As the result of long and arduous application to business for many years, Jefferson M. Clough, now of Belchertown, Mass., who has just turned sixty-five years, found him disabled by muscular rheumatism two years and more ago and was obliged to relinquish the position of general superintendent of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, of New Haven, Conn., where he had been employed for eleven years at a salary of $5,000 for the first few years of his service, but which was increased to $7,500 by the voluntary action of the company. Previous to his service for the Winchester Repeating Arms Company he had filled the responsible position of superintendent at E. Remington & Son's armory, at Ilion, N. Y., for seventeen years; during which time large quantities of arms were made for foreign governments as well as our own, besides sewing machines and typewriters—Mr. Clough having perfected the first of the latter machines that was exhibited. After leaving the Remingtons and previous to making an engagement with the Winchester Arms Company, the secretary of the Chinese Legation in this country came to Belchertown and negotiated with Mr. Clough to go to China to build arms for the Chinese government; but the long delay in getting the answer from the Chinese decided him in accepting the offer to go to New Haven. It was during his service for the Arms Company he visited the leading armories of England, France and Germany in company with the vice-president of the company, in order to learn whatever new methods there might be in the manufacture of muskets. It was after this long term of active labor as a business man that, finding himself incapacitated for further service by the embargo which rheumatism had laid upon him, he resigned his position more than two years ago and returned to Belchertown, where he owned what was originally the Phelps farm, about three miles southeast of the centre of the town, in a retired spot where he has five hundred acres of land.

From this quiet home he began to seek a remedy for the muscular rheumatism which was located largely in the muscles of his shoulders, chest and back. He employed Dr. Holbrook, of Palmer, and received great benefit from his treatment for a time; but was so anxious to gain faster that he decided to seek another treatment, and being a man of means did not spare the cost, and was treated by baths at celebrated springs without receiving any benefit worth notice. He then tried various remedies advertised for rheumatism without receiving any good effect. During the summer of 1893 and the winter of 1894 Mr. Clough was confined to his house in Belchertown, being unable to rise from his bed without assistance, and suffering continually with acute pains and with no taste or desire for food, nor was he able to obtain sufficient sleep.

Early in the year 1894 Mr. Clough heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People through his brother James M. Clough, of Easthampton, Mass., who came to visit him, and was induced to make a trial of them. He began taking these pills about the first of March, 1894, and continued to do so until the first part of September following. The first effect noticed was a better appetite and he began to note more ability to help himself off the bed and to be better generally. Last August (1894) he was able to go alone to his summer residence and farm of 163 acres on Grenadier Island, among the Thousand Islands, in the river St. Lawrence, where from the highest land of his farm he commands a view for thirteen miles down the river.

Instead of being confined to his bed Mr. Clough is now and has been for some time able to be about the farm to direct the men employed there, and he is thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for him.

A Society Girl.

From the Oswego, N. Y., Palladium.

"For months I lived in an agony of fear; I thought surely I was going to die and friends greeted me as one not long for this world. Physicians were unable to help me and I believe that I would have died but for my brother writing to me from Detroit, Michigan, and recommending that I try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I did so reluctantly and with little faith in their efficacy. I am cured now and I know that I owe my restoration to health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and to them alone."

That is the story Miss Elizabeth Williams, of 110 West Third Street, a lady prominent in society circles, told a reporter of the Oswego, N. Y., Daily Palladium, who called upon her at her home in that city yesterday. Miss Williams is the daughter of the late Capt. Wm. Williams, who was for many years master of some of the finest passenger steamers on the great lakes and an inspector and rater of hulls for the Lloyd's marine records on the lakes. Continuing the story of her illness in her own way, Miss Williams said:

"I was always regarded as healthy and robust by my family and friends; in fact, I hardly knew what sickness was until the winter of 1893-4. I was then taken down with an attack of la grippe from the attending effects of which I did not recover for months. There seemed to be a general break-down in my health and constitution, winding up in the early summer with nervous prostration and sciatic rheumatism. I can't describe my symptoms. My appetite was gone and for weeks I was unable to eat or relish food but sparingly. I lost flesh rapidly and was as thin as a shadow. Local physicians attended me constantly. After months of treatment I dismissed both and took my brother's advice and tried Pink Pills. He had found them efficacious for kidney trouble. Before I had finished taking the first box I noticed an improvement in my physical condition. I began to relish my food and my rheumatism troubled me less. Gradually the general tone of my health improved and my rheumatic pains left me entirely. I regained strength and took on flesh, until to-day I regard myself as thoroughly free from all ailments and in perfect health. My friend noted my improvement and I have never hesitated to tell them what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for one sufferer. It is that others may be benefited that I make this statement and relate my experiences."

The foregoing is but two of many wonderful cures that have been credited to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Diseases which heretofore have been supposed to be incurable, such as locomotor ataxia and paralysis succumb to this wonderful medicine as readily as the most trifling ailments. In many cases the reported cures have been investigated by the leading newspapers and verified in every possible manner, and in no case has the least semblance of fraud been discovered. Their fame has spread to the far ends of civilization and there is hardly a drug store in this country or abroad where they cannot be found.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

The impression that the German emperor is approaching lunacy is strengthened by things he occasionally does. One of these was that order mentioned some time ago by a London correspondent, in which his majesty requested people not to look at him in church. He does not like to be watched while he is at divine service. But if he were rapt in his prayers, as he ought to be, his majesty would not know whether people looked at him or not. The freakish emperor, however, signifies his entire willingness to be stared at when not in church. The closing part of his order is certainly something whose like was never heard of, even in the times of the Roman emperors, "Those who desire to have a good view of me can do so every day when I take my walk in the thiergarten or drive in my carriage."

Mrs. Elizabeth D. Bacon has been elected to the high school committee of Hartford. She was nominated by the Democrats, and ran ahead of her ticket, many Republicans also voting for her. The nomination was entirely unsought. Mrs. Bacon is president of the Hartford Equal Rights club, and sister of Mrs. Ellen M. Bolles of Rhode Island. Her father, Solomon D. She was a teacher in the public schools in Providence for three years after her graduation from the high school in that city. She has been a resident of Hartford since 1867.

THREE WAR STORIES.

A Surprised Private—One Bridge Cosby Couldn't Burn Ready to Drink.

Jeff Sterrett was a Confederate soldier who served as a private, and who is one of the two or three privates who survived the war. He was somewhat sentimental and naturally fell in love with any good looking girl he might see. He fell in love with a young woman of Murfreesboro and slipped off to see her at every opportunity. One day his feelings so overwhelmed him that he suddenly found himself proposing marriage to her

"No," she replied, her eyes filling, "I can never marry you."

Sterrett was surprised

"Why not?" he asked

"Oh, my heart is gone It's in the grave It was buried when they buried Captain —— five months ago."

That was too much for Sterrett He at once became angry

"Very well, miss," he said. "If you can love a dead captain better than a live private you can scratch for it."

General Cosby had a mania for burning down bridges. Whenever he heard there was a bridge in his neighborhood he promptly had it laid low His continuous destruction of bridges several times got himself and his men in tight places, where a bridge would have come in mighty handy, and resulted in an uneasy feeling among his men.

He moved into Virginia in the neighborhood of the Natural Bridge and one day gave his men permission to inspect the great natural wonder. Two cavalrymen, one of a poetic turn and the other of a worldly, practical turn, happened to go there together.

"Isn't this the most stupendous, magnificent, grand view you ever saw?" exclaimed the poetic man grandiloquently "Gaze upon that landscape See how beautiful are the works of nature." He continued in this strain several minutes and finally asked the other his opinion.

"I don't know much about its bein stupendous, nor any o' that sort o' thing, but I'm d——d glad that we've found one bridge that Cosby can't burn up"

In the regiment with General Duke was a soldier named Jack Skillman, who was a great hand at telling yarns. His yarns were about great acts which he said he did, but which he never performed, ignoring completely several astonishing deeds of bravery he really did, and which really were more remarkable than any alleged act he told about. The scene of one of his yarns was a strip along the bank of the Tennessee river lying between Chattanooga and Knoxville. At the point mentioned the river flowed in a deep canyon and appeared from above to be a thread winding about, hundreds of feet below It was a dizzy height.

"I was a-goin 'long here one day all by mysel', said he, "an when I come to this p'int I see a blamed Yankee all by hissel' a-comin toward me I says to mysel', says I, It ain't no use o' our fightin here, where no one ain't lookin an where we'd likeas not fall down the cliff.

"I tole the Yankee we needn't fight. 'Yes, we will,' says he. I said no 'Our fightin wouldn't decide the war,' says I, 'an we mought as well be friends.' An I tole him to come along an have a drink.

"The blamed Yankee kept on tellin me we was a-goin to fight, an fore I knowed it he jumped on to me Well, sah, how we did fight! We knocked each other down an wallowed an scratched an tore roun, an I see more stars than you can think of Oh, we did fight!

"Pretty soon I saw we were a-goin over to the edge of the precipice In another minute I see we was lost Over we went a-whirlin an a-whizzin, a-fightin an a-scratchin. We bumped into the rocks as we went down an knocked lots of 'em loose I thought we was never goin to reach bottom After what seemed two hours we struck, kerplunk! Whew! We was knocked apart by the lick, an I thought the Yankee would be dead I raised up an looked. Just as I raised the Yankee raised too

"'Reb,' says he, 'I believe I'll take that drink now.'"—Louisville Courier Journal

Music and Fatigue.

Music relieves muscular fatigue in man, says Professor Tarchanoff of St. Petersburg, who has been experimenting on the subject from a purely physiological standpoint. It helps to drive out carbonic acid in dogs and increases their consumption of oxygen; it also makes them perspire. He thinks it may be regarded as a serious therapeutic agent.

Belladonna.

Belladonna is a preparation from the deadly nightshade, a plant familiar to most persons from being frequently seen as an ornamental shrub in the flower gardens. All parts of the plant are actively poisonous, and many fatalities have resulted from the leaves or berries being incautiously chewed or eaten by children and other persons.

WHY LATIN IS USED.

A Druggist Tells Why Prescriptions Should Not Be Written In English.

"I don't see," said the man who was leaning against the drug store counter, "why a doctor can't write his prescriptions in English instead of Latin. Suppose my system absolutely requires whisky; that my health and future usefulness to society depend upon it? Well, I go to my doctor and get a prescription. It calls for spiritus frumenti. Now, that ain't what I want. I want whisky. Why can't he come out flat footed and say so? But I suppose he thinks that would be giving the game away. I suppose he would rather I'd take his wisdom with a grain of chloride of sodium than with a grain of salt. Isn't that it?"

The druggist smiled and said: "You've got the same idea most people have. You think, I suppose, that the doctor writes his prescription in Latin so it can't be read so easily—so the layman can't steal his trade and learn what he is giving him. But that's all wrong. In the first place, Latin is a more exact and concise language than English, and being a dead language does not change, as all living languages do.

"Then, again, since a very large part of all the drugs in use are botanical they have in the pharmacopœia the same names that they have in botany—the scientific names. Two-thirds of such drugs haven't any English names, and so couldn't be written in English.

"But suppose a doctor did write a prescription in English for an uneducated patient? The patient reads it, thinks he remembers it and so tries to get it filled from memory the second time. Suppose, for instance, it called for iodide of potassium, and he got it confused with cyanide of potassium? He could safely take ten grains of the first, but one grain of the second would kill him as dead as a mackerel That's an exaggerated case, but it will serve for an illustration. Don't you see how the Latin is a protection and a safeguard to the patient? Prescriptions in Latin he can't read and consequently does not try to remember.

"Now for a final reason. Latin is a language that is used by scientific men the world over, and no other language is You can get a Latin prescription filled in any country on the face of the earth where there is a drug store. We had a prescription come in here the other day which we had put up originally, and which had since been stamped by druggists in London, Paris, Berlin, Constantinople, Cairo and Calcutta. What good would an English prescription be in St. Petersburg?"

Two Compliments.

A lecturer used to tell of two compliments he had received, each of which was, as he said, a "gem" in its way. One day a friend met him on the street, and said cheerfully: "I see that you lectured last night. Sorry I wasn't able to be there Hope to hear your lecture when it passes into literature." This was different from the tribute paid him by a young man, who, with a grave face and businesslike air, stopped up to the lecturer one night, as he left the platform, shook his hand solemnly, and remarked, with the air of one making a dry statement of facts, "I merely wished to say that you are my favorite writer and speaker," after which he bowed and abruptly disappeared.

FARM FIELD AND GARDEN

LIME AS A FERTILIZER.

Its Value to the Farmer How and When It May Be Applied.

If we study the composition of plants, we find that lime is the most important part of the mineral elements of nearly every one. And it is to be remembered that in the growth of plants every element found in them is indispensable. But how much more must it be so—if such a thing were possible, for one element to be more indispensable than another—for lime, which exists in such a large proportion, to be anything but indispensable. And this must be thought so as we consider that in the ash of hay one eighth part is lime; in the ash of clover more than a third of it is lime; in the ash of potato tops nearly one-half is lime. The ashes of wood, which we think so valuable on account of the potash in them, have several times more lime than potash, the lime amounting to from 30 to 70 per cent. And there is not one plant grown that has not lime in its ashes The same applies to potash and phosphoric acid, and reasonably these are supposed to be food for plants; why, then, is not lime a plant food? Surely it must be so considered. Thus writes that excellent authority, Henry Stewart, in The American Agriculturist. He also is authority for the following:

The best farmed localities in the world are those where the soil contains a large proportion of lime, being derived from the decomposition of limestone rocks. But it is not so much on account of the lime in the soil that the land is so well farmed and so productive, but mostly for the reason that lime being there abundant and cheap, the farmers burn the limestone and make lime, and apply it to the land Lime only is a plant food, but limestone is not, and the soil may be well filled with limestone and yet be quite poor. Now lime is a very active chemical substance. This will be seen if some of it is put in some vinegar. This will foam up and boil over the cup, and a large quantity of gas will be evolved. In the end there will be no more acid in the vinegar. And this is one effect of lime on soil that is sour, such as swamp land, in which the excess of acid prevents the growth of any useful plants.

If we put some lime on a dead animal or on any other organic matter, it will quickly decompose it and reduce it to its original elements, and this is one effect of lime when used in a compost, the matters thus decomposed then becoming good manure and useful food for plants. And this same effect is produced in the soil when quicklime is applied, as it usually is in the fall when the land is prepared for wheat and grass and clover seeding. But the chemist may take some sand or other mineral matter and mix lime with it, and then add water, and the lime will dissolve quite a considerable quantity of this mineral matter, forming silicate of lime, and by taking the silica from the potash, or the phosphate, or magnesia, or the alumina, etc., that the soil is made up of, the lime renders these elements of plant food soluble and available for the crops.

Now this is a small part of the natural history of lime, as it is used in good farming. And with such a history we must realize its value to the farmer, quite independently of the fact whether it is actually a plant food or not. And as the season is approaching when the land is in the best condition for the application of lime, as lime is most soluble in cold water, and the wheat crop is most convenient for it, it is a question for all of us if it is not advisable to so use it, and gather the fruits of its good effects on the soil The freshly burned lime only is used, and 20 to 40 bushels per acre is the usual quantity. It is left in heaps in the field, preferably of one bushel each, two rods apart, and in a few days it falls to a fine powder by the action of the moisture of the air, or a shower of rain, when it is easily spread quite evenly—so as to just whiten the surface—with a long handled shovel. But when lime is thus used for the wheat, it is not advisable to use superphosphate until the spring. It can then be used to advantage.

Cottonseed Meal to Swine.

The results of an investigation made at the Iowa station on feeding cotton seed and other meals to swine seem to warrant the following conclusions: 1 Cottonseed meal is fatal to hogs when fed in sufficient quantity; the total amount required to prove fatal being in this case from 27 to 33 pounds per hog. 2. Hogs in this experiment were fed without injury for 17 weeks following cattle that were fed from four to seven pounds of cottonseed meal per head daily. 3. Cottonseed meal added to a corn and cob meal ration for hogs materially increased and cheapened the gains over corn and cob meal alone 4. Cut clover hay added to a corn and cob meal ration and soaked 12 hours before feeding gave no advantage in gain over corn and cob meal alone.

Fighting Cutworms.

In a bulletin from the New Jersey station it is stated that clover or sod land is most frequently infested by cutworms, which are less frequently found on late cultivated land. The worms are especially abundant in crimson clover. Among the remedies suggested clean culture is placed first, prominently associated with early fall plowing. Applying a top dressing of kainit and nitrate of soda in the early spring if corn is to be planted is advised, the seeding to be delayed until a rain has carried the fertilizers into the soil. Distributing clover or bran that has been moistened with paris green about the fields is also recommended.

EVOLUTION OF A PLANET.

Tracing the Growth of a World From Its First Form of Vapor.

Clearest evidence shows that our earth was once "a lurid haze of light," and that for countless eons afterward her globe was instinct with fiery heat, amid which no forms of life could be conceived to exist, after the manner of life known to us. In the sun, the ruler of the planetary system, we have an orb representing the earlier stage of the past history of our earth, when it was a mass of glowing vapor. The glory of the sun and his fiery heat assure us, as with the clearest words, that he is in the infancy of his career as an orb in space. The spectroscope reveals to us that many of the elements to be found on our earth exist in the sun in the form of glowing vapor. With regard to the mean density of the sun, we find that instead of being far more compressed than the earth, as we might expect from its enormous mass were it in the same condition, it has a mean density only one-fourth of hers. All these features prove that the sun is in the first stage of world life, the glowing, vaporous stage, when the whole frame of a planet is instinct with fiery heat and aglow with intense luster.

We will find the second stage of a world's growth in the giant planet Jupiter. At this period of its existence the earth was surrounded by deep masses of clouds, the water was boiling on its surface, the whole air was red hot. The heat was so intense that the water could no more have rested on that surface than it can rest on a surface of redhot iron. Vast quantities of steam rushed upward, passing with terrific uproar into the upper air. The waters now forming the seas and oceans on our earth were then in the form of vapor. At this stage of its career the whole frame of the earth was enveloped by dense clouds. These clouds were in an atmosphere drenched with muriatic, sulphuric and other acids, which, together with boiling water, descended upon the earth in the form of intensely hot rain. After having been subjected to these forces the earth arrived at the present stage of existence, when it has become the abode of life. After having served as the home of mankind it will slowly lose its fertility, imperceptibly fade away, as man himself does, and finally arrive at the fourth period of a planet's life—the stage of planetary decrepitude, as shown in the planet Mars.

When we examine Mars, we cannot help noticing the comparative smallness of its water surface. The seas on Mars cover but one-half of the planet's surface, while on our earth the proportion the water surface bears to the surface of land is 72 to 28. The conclusion seems to be that the older the planet the smaller the oceans This view seems startling at first, but it has been confirmed by scientists such as Sterry Hunt of America, Frankland of England, Meunier of France and Seemann of Germany. According to their theory, the oceans of the planet, as it grows older, are withdrawn into cavities, while the atmosphere grows rarer and rarer, until life becomes an impossibility. Finally the planet becomes waterless and airless and arrives at the final stage of death. We have this period represented by the moon, and it shows how our earth will be when it has reached this stage, "going around the sun a mere graveyard, carrying the memories of a past life."

So we have to accept the evidence that death has to come upon the earth at some future time, however unpleasant the thought may be, and that after life has gone from our earth it may pass to the larger planets. Then, after millions of years, during which Jupiter and the other planets of the solar system may become the abode of life, a period may come when death will reign throughout the whole planetary system. Then life may pass to another solar system, and so, age after age, the worlds will live on, throughout eternity, "chanting the glorious epic of creation, the poem of the universe." We may find a new meaning that would better agree with our ideas of an almighty power It is not with less reverence for the universe and for the power which works in and through it that we must pursue our study of the heavens In the words of Tennyson:

Let knowledge grow from more to more,
Let more of reverence in us dwell,
That mind and soul according well,
May make one music as before.

COUNTERFEITERS.

Two of Them Arrested by Deputy U. S Marshal Harmon

Ugly Weapons, Spurious Coins and Counterfeit Moulds Found on One of the Prisoners—How They Were Captured

Deputy United States Marshal Harmon, of Toledo, arrived in the city from Van Wert this morning with two prisoners, whom he requested Chief Haller to lock up in the city prison until 1 30 o'clock this afternoon, when he left with them for Toledo, where they will be arraigned before the United States Commissioner upon charges of making and passing counterfeit money.

For two years Van Wert and Paulding counties and northeastern Indiana have been flooded, at intervals, with counterfeit nickles, half-dollars and dollars. The spurious coins had almost every appearance of being genuine, and that they were counterfeit could be detected only by very careful examination or test.

The United States secret service employes have known for some time that an organized gang existed somewhere in Paulding or Van Wert county but until last night none of the gang were identified

Deputy Marshall Harmon has recently devoted considerable time to the case and last night he "closed in" on two men who are alleged

MEMBERS OF THE GANG

Yesterday the officer visited the home of Wm. H. Blackmore, which is located in northern Van Wert county near Hoover's post office. Blackmore has long been suspected as being one of the conterfeiters but no evidence sufficient to justify his arrest was ever secured and he had never been molested by Government officers. Yesterday however, Marshal [Harmon determined to arrest the man and visited his home in the woods in an isolated part of Van Wert county for that purpose Blackmore had recently returned from an absence of three weeks, during which time he was in Indiana, and he hoped to find counterfeit money or moulds about the house that would be sufficient to convict him The officer was not armed, but walked boldly into the house, and almost the first things he discovered were three shotguns and a rifle. Blackmore's wife stated that her husband was not at home, and though Mr. Harmon searched the house thoroughly, he found neither the counterfeiter or any tools used in making the coins.

After leaving the house, the officer learned that Blackmore had gone to Latty, Paulding county, with some metal and moulds, for the purpose of teaching a new member of the gang how to make half dollars Harmon started for Latty and arrived there after dark last night Blackmore had evidently fulfilled his mission and was about to return home, for

at the C. J & M depot waiting for a south bound train. Harmon was not sure the man was really Blackmore so he stepped into the waiting room and addressed him by that name The counterfeiter was caught off his guard and revealed his identity by answering Marshal Harmon was unarmed but he ran his right arm into his overcoat pocket as though he had a revolver there and ordered Blackmore to stand up and be searched and not make a move to escape if he valued his life The man was taken completely by surprise and offered no resistance until the town marshal, whom Mr Harmon summoned from the outside, attempted to put a pair of handcuffs on his wrists He was soon overpowered however, and had to submit When searched a lot of counterfeit dollars and half dollars, a mould containing an unfinished half dollar, some scraps of copper, babbit and other metals, a monster revolver and an ugly double-edged dirk knife with a seven inch blade, were found in his pockets

Marshal Harman took his prisoner to Van Wert and leaving him in jail there drove to Hoagland township in that county, captured a man named Baker, who is also charged with being a member of the gang This morning both prisoners were brought here and this afternoon Marshal Harmon continued to Toledo with them

Monday Mr Harmon will return to Van Wert county, where he expects to turn up some more tools and counterfeit money and hopes to locate several other

MEMBERS OF THE GANG

Much of the evidence against Blackmore was secured through his own indiscretion He gave a young and honestly inclined farmer boy a lot of counterfeit half dollars which he wanted the boy to secrete about the house of a well-to-do and respected farmer named Cramer. Blackburn holds a grudge at Cramer because the latter at one time caused his arrest for some miner offense and he intended to cause Cramer to be arrested for having counterfeit money secreted in his house

A BIG DEAL.

The Mammoth Unloads Another Large Stock.

The Largest Shipment of Goods Ever Made in Northwestern Ohio

The Buffalo Times of November 6th contains the following

A BIG DEAL

Messrs Warner Bros & Co, the wholesale clothiers of Pearl street, are about to make a change in their firm, and for the purpose of settling their partnership matters, they are closing out their entire stock.

They have sold to-day to A Goldstein, of Jamestown, N Y, the largest part of their fall and winter stock in men's boys, youths' and children's clothing This will be the largest shipment of clothing made by any firm here for some time.

We wish the old members of the firm of Warner Bros. & Co. success in whatever arrangements they may make for the future.'

Seeing this a reporter of the TIMES-DEMOCRAT called on J Goldstein, manager of the Mammoth, to learn the extent of the purchase.

"Yes," said he, "we have purchased this stock of goods at less than the cost of manufacture, and when we announce the arrival of these goods it will create a sensation among people interested in clothing. The firm of Warner Bros & Co is one of the oldest and most reliable in Buffalo, it has been in business since 1841, and is recognized as a leader. Their stock, which will crowd our store from cellar to garret, is of high class, as the reputation of the firm fully guarantees, and having secured a bargain we are going to put these goods out among the people at prices which will leave no excuse for anyone to go cold this winter I am too busy now to go into details just tell the readers of the TIMES-DEMOCRAT that the Mammoth has something good in store for them, and, as we never announce a bargain that we are not prepared to carry out in good faith and to the full letter, they will know what this means This will be no ordinary sale we will have goods which must be made to move, and we are going to move them"

Keep your eye on the advertising columns of the TIMES DEMOCRAT great bargains are to be announced

WASN'T HIM.

Noah Blosser Not Killed in an Accident Here.

Noah Blosser, who resided in the vicinity of Dunkirk, Ind, left home twelve years ago and news was received by his relatives there of an accident near this city soon afterwards in which a man was killed. The body was mutilated beyond recognition, but in one of the pockets was found a paper bearing the name of Noah Blosser His relatives mourned him as dead until a day or two ago when he put in an appearance but little changed from what he was years ago Blosser had gone east and has been there for the last twelve years It is supposed that the corpse found was that of another person of the same name or some one who had picked up a letter belonging to the original Blosser.
